into uncharted waters and fear of the unknown. The change of mindset involves understanding mind, body, intellect and soul of each person. He emphasized that transformation is not a luxury but a necessity. The change of mindset will result in creating positive energy, re-learning, unfolding the hidden potential, happiness and peace. One should try to be realistic to the present surroundings since what ever happened in the past is beyond correction and future cannot be predicted. He also pointed out that 'change of activities' is also a mindset changing activity. Similar is the case of knowledge, skill and attitudes. He urged the audience to accept people and things as it is. The talk was packed with full of life experiences and well received by the participants. Secretary Shri K Raveendra Prasad proposed vote of thanks. The programme was followed by dinner.
